Suggested itinerary:

Day 1: Arrive in Clifden

The coastal town of Clifden (@ 1 hour drive from Galway and 2.5 hours from Shannon airport), often called the 'capital of Connemara', is the site of the famed Alcock and Brown landing after their first ever transatlantic flight in 1919. The town is full of restaurants and traditional pubs. Bikes await you at the first hotel and we suggest you plan to arrive mid-afternoon. There is a 24 hour emergency phone number should you have any queries about the bikes, route or need any assistance.

Day 2: Sky Road and Roundstone

cycling – options @ 35 – 45km

Today you have a choice to cycle along the famous Sky Road or to discover the south of Connemara and the rugged Roundstone Peninsula, offering spectacular views of the Atlantic coastline and the stark peat wilderness.

Day 3: Clifden to Inishbofin Island

cycling @ 35km

After breakfast, cycle along the Sky Road with cliff-top views of the Atlantic Ocean and the nearby islands. Then take the Bog Road across native peat land to the fishing village of Cleggan, the departure point for the 40-minute ferry ride to Inishbofin Island. The island is peppered with ancient sites, including the ruins of Cromwell's promontory fort and gaol, set high above the entrance to the island's harbour. Its meandering laneways, remote beaches and old stone walls contribute to the feeling of stepping back in time. Depending on availability you either spend the night on Inishbofin or catch the 5pm ferry back to stay in Cleggan.

Day 4: Inishbofin Island to Renvyle

cycling @ 20km or longer options

After a morning on the island, catch the ferry back to the village of Cleggan and cycle to the Renvyle Peninsula. The whole area is rich in archaeological sites and the scattered ruins of a more populated era. Take time to stop and examine some megalithic tombs, holy wells and standing stones. Passing through the village of Letterfrack, take a small detour up to the Connemara National Park where you have the option of climbing Diamond Hill (this can also be done the following day). Continue on to your accommodation in Renvyle.

Day 5: Renvyle to Leenane

cycling @ 25km or longer options

After breakfast, set out from Renvyle for the ride to the village of Leenane. You have the option of cycling along the quiet coastal route to explore the Renvyle Peninsula and its coves, white sandy beaches and villages; or choose to take the Connemara Lady catamaran along Killary Fjord for a 1.5 hour sightseeing boat ride (departing at set times, at extra cost paid locally). The boat trip is often accompanied by a pod of dolphins and includes commentary on major points of interest along the way. You stay in the village of Leenane tucked at the foot of mountains and overlooking Killary Fjord.

Day 6: Leenane to Louisburgh

cycling @ 30km or longer options

The route from Leenane to Louisburgh offers some of the most breathtaking scenery in Ireland. Ride through the spectacular Delphi Valley to the pretty little town of Louisburgh, which retains 18th Century features in both style and scale. An area of immense natural beauty with Croagh Patrick to the east, the Atlantic to the west, the Sheaffrey and Mweelrea Mountains to the south and Clew Bay to the north. The route through a tranquil, rural landscape culminates in splendid ocean views tonight as you meet the Atlantic Ocean again at Louisburgh.

Day 7: Louisburgh to Westport

cycling @ 25km or longer options

After breakfast your route follows the coastline along Clew Bay, stopping off at the 14th Century Murrisk Abbey for a break before arriving in Westport. There is also a chance to observe life in this historic West of Ireland town which was built in the late 18th Century by the Brown family who are still in residence at Westport House. Their magnificent Georgian mansion is open for a visit and is only a short stroll from the town centre. For the more energetic, you can climb the nearby holy mountain of Croagh Patrick with its tiny church at the summit and its breathtaking view over the 365 islands of Clew Bay (@ 20km). You stay in Westport and perhaps experience the heart-stirring beat of traditional music in one of its pubs, or sample one of its many restaurants.

Day 8: Depart Westport

Tour ends after breakfast. Regular buses go to Galway or trains to Dublin. Transfers or extra nights of accommodation can be arranged at extra cost.
