Suggested itinerary Paris to Épernay: *

Day 1: Paris

Arrive at the barge, moored in central Paris, between 12 noon and 2pm. Then the barge will cruise along the canal to the River Seine and continue upstream to the confluence of the Seine and Marne Rivers, in the outer suburbs of Paris.

Day 2: Paris – Lagny

cycling @ 35km

After breakfast we cycle mostly on bike trails and quiet roads with relatively low traffic as we head out of Paris near the Bois de Vincennes and chateau. We end our day in Lagny, a small town on the outskirts of Paris. Often there is an art-exhibition in the town centre.

Day 3: Lagny - Meaux - La Ferté-sous-Jouarre

cycling @ 35 or 50km

We enter the region of Brie today, famous around the world for its soft cheese. We ride into Meaux, with its unfinished Gothic cathedral. We then continue on to our mooring point for the night, not far from the little town of La Ferté-sous-Jouarre. There is also the option to visit Jouarre, with its Benedictine abbey, Romanesque church and crypt, located high on a hilltop.

Day 4: La Ferté-sous-Jouarre - Château Thierry

cycling @ 45km

Today offers a delightful ride through the undulating countryside with some ups and downs. Along the way are the first vineyards of the Champagne region. Cycling beside the river past the village of St Cyr and the valley of Petit Morin we reach our overnight mooring point at Château Thierry, which we also get to visit.

Day 5: Château Thierry - Damery

cycling @ 45km

An easier ride along the river this morning, with only a few hills until we reach Dormans, with its chateau and memorial chapel to the two WW1 Battles of the Marne. We cycle along the river to the village of Damery. On occasion we may moor overnight at Dormans.

Day 6: Damery - Épernay

cycling @ 30km

This morning ride through vineyards and encounter some hillier terrain. Cycling to Épernay, the centre of the Champagne industry, we visit one of the many Champagne houses for a guided tour of the cellars.

Day 7: Excursion to Reims

We leave the Marne Valley to visit the ancient town of Reims by train. Reims dates back to the Roman Empire with a Forum, Porte de Mars and a monumental triumphal arch. However, the highlight of Reims is the spectacular Cathedral de Notre Dame. Until 1825 the cathedral was the traditional site for the coronation of the kings of France. Destroyed in the Great War the cathedral was carefully restored to its old glory. The other highlight of our day in Reims is a visit of one of the largest Champagne brands: Pommery. The famous Heidsieck champagne originates from this house with hundreds of thousands of bottles stored in the cellar. If you have already seen and tasted enough Champagne you can do some sightseeing, shopping, or visit the Musée des Beaux Arts, before returning to Épernay.

Day 8: Departure day

Tour arrangements end after breakfast. There are rail connections from Épernay to Paris and onward.
